Dr. Alveda C. King Speaks in Bellingham

Dr. King spoke at WWU/Arntzen Hall and at the Lakeway Inn. We were excited to see so many in attendance. Her message was inspiring to all.

So many people buying books and meeting Dr. King, taking advantage of this amazing opportunity.

Fair shifts available

There are still a number of openings to work at our fair booth, August 17-22. We have 3 shifts each day. 10-2, 2-6, & 6-10pm. We will send you TWO free passes to fill a 4hr shift (for you and a friend). It's a great deal and you will keep in touch with pro-life supporters. Call Marlae @ 354-1188 to be put on the schedule.

Stop in at the LHL Booth

You have to check out the LHL booth at the fair. We have all the things to keep you supporting LIFE:) Bumper stickers, feet pins, t-shirts, pencils, DVD's, baby blankets and literature!! WE also have yard signs to keep your neighbors thinking about LIFE. WE are located in the tented commercial section between the carnival and the commercial buildings, close to the front gate entrance.

Life-chain coming to Bellingham

Life-Chain is coming to Bellingham Sunday, October 4th, @ 2:00 pm.
Help line the Guide Meridian along the sidewalks. You could save a life, right then and there! Between Bakerview & Stuart Rd, West Side.
Landmarks are BCTK on S. end and Woods Coffee on N. end.
(This will mark our 27th year!)

Lynden Human Life is very proud to have hosted Dr. Alveda C. King to our area. It is no small undertaking to get a speaker of this magnitude to our corner of the universe. WE are thankful for the dignitaries who met her for lunch on Friday, and for all of you who did come out to hear her unique and historical past, along with her perspective on LIFE. LHL will continue to look for opportunities to share the "Gospel of Life" with the residents of Whatcom County.

Seattle Students Can't get a Coke at School, but They Can Get an IUD

By Kathleen Brown | July 1, 2015 | 11:07 AM EDT

(CNSNews.com) -- Middle and high school students can't get a Coca-Cola or a candy bar at 13 Seattle public schools, but they can get a taxpayer-funded intrauterine device (IUD) implanted without their parents' consent.

School-based health clinics in at least 13 Seattle-area public high schools and middle schools offer long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARCs), including IUDs and hormonal implants, to students in sixth-grade and above at no cost, according to Washington State officials.

LARCs are associated with serious side effects, such as uterine perforation and infection. IUDs, specifically, can also act as abortifacients by preventing the implantation of a fertilized egg.

The state and federally funded contraceptive services are made possible by Take Charge, a Washington State Medicaid program which provides free birth control to adults who are uninsured, lack contraceptive coverage, have an income at or below 260 percent of the Federal Poverty Level -- or, in this case, to teens who don't want their parents to know they're on birth control.

In an email exchange with the Washington State Health Care Authority and CNSNews.com, a Take Charge spokesperson acknowledged that underage students are eligible for a "full array of covered family planning services" at school-based clinics if their parents meet the program's requirements.

Take Charge added that "a student who does not want their parents to know they are seeking reproductive health services is allowed to apply for Take Charge using their own income, and if they are insured under their parents' plan, the insurance would not be billed."

When asked if a sixth grader could get an IUD implanted without parental consent, Take Charge told CNSNews.com: "We encourage all Take Charge providers to offer long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARCs) in their clinics. A young person does not need parental consent to obtain a LARC or any other contraceptive method...If the young person is not choosing abstinence, she would be able to select a LARC and have it inserted without parental consent."

So while the students can't get a soda from the cafeteria due to the Seattle School Board's 2004 ban on junk food, they can get an IUD implanted at their school's health center without their parents' knowledge or permission.

According to the Washington State Medicaid website, health centers at four middle schools and nine high schools in Seattle participate in the Take Charge program. Other Take Charge providers are located in close proximity to schools.

"We have public health departments, community-based clinics, college and university clinics, pediatric clinics, private physician practices, and family planning clinics, like Planned Parenthood" as providers, Take Charge said in the email exchange. A total of 38 Planned Parenthood clinics participate in the Take Charge program.

Seattle school-based clinics participating in the program include Aki Kurose Middle School, Washington Middle School, Denny Middle School, Madison Middle School, Franklin High School, Nathan Hale High School, Roosevelt High School, West Seattle High School, Garfield High School, Ingraham High School, Rainier Beach High School, South Lake High School, and Chief Sealth International High School. →

What it's called: Mirena, ParaGard

What it does: ParaGard is a surgically implanted copper device.

Mirena, also releases copper to help prevent the egg from attaching to the uterine wall. It is surgically implanted, works by releasing hormones.
